

ABSTRACT

A method for fabricating imitative stone furniture mainly utilizes non-stone raw materials to fabricate and form substrates of various shapes desired, then evenly cover the surfaces of the substrates with 5 a coating material, then dry and cure the coating material until the coating material solidified to form an imitative stone layer on the surfaces of the substrates. The resulting substrates may be used to fabricate various types of furniture such as tables and chairs.